Some women are useful, touchy. A widow has brought action against a newspaper which said that her husband had gone to a happy home.

There are several good things the press at war has done: It has stopped the Balkan wars and the House rule controversies. It has made a great influence in bringing the people of different religions, races and social positions into closer relationships."

It is said that dancing makes girl's feet large. It has also led ice cream makes freckles. Doctors are of the opinion that hanging on the front gate produces rheumatism. A few more opinions like these and the girls won't have any fun left them.

Lomburg has been reacquired by the Germans, but it is adverse effect on the cause is more imaginary than real. The evacuation of Lomburg by the Russians was a wise move. The temporary holding of Lomburg at the present time is a matter of minor importance.

We must advise the public to beware of those stores who do not advertise. The publication of an advertisement is a sign of respectability, of honest method and fair dealing. All the owners believed his own good. The man who is a honest merchant expresses his faith in his community and his business. He has something to tell you and must back up his printed statements. A customer need never fear being robbed or cheated in the store of the man who constantly uses printer's ink, and is inventing stories about the quality of his goods and a quotation of the prices at which they are offered. He is seeking and deserves the confidence of the public.

Out in western Canada, recently, a concern went bankrupt. The savings of a lot of working people had been invested in that corporation. They had little money to lose—you can "bank" on that, as they say in the classics. Under the circumstances, the man who is bankrupt, and the government could try and save all they could out of a wreck? The concern in question was the Dominion Trust Company. How much do you think the lawyers who acted for the provincial liquidator charged for their services? Seven thousand dollars! And that was the consequence of how the authorities helped the poor investors to get all they could out of the wreck!—John Canuck

"It was the lame-est place I ever entered in my life," was the remark of a farmer who had just returned from one of our western cities, where he had been obliged to accompany his son, for an operation, at one of the hospitals, and to wait some days for his recovery. He had succeeded in getting a brief leave of absence, and everyone had been kind to him. But, from may mean hand tool and long hours, with many variations and problems to solve, but they are only a drop in a bucket when compared with the problems of city life. We do not appreciate as we might the advantages which are ours, living as we do in such a desolate and quiet district. The mere privilege of seeing green things growing, brings happiness, and the return for honest effort makes a satisfaction which cannot come to the average resident of the cities.

ROD AND GUN FOR JULY

Judy Red and Gun covers a considerable range in its outdoor stories for this month. Salt Water Fishing near Victoria; The Hunt of the English, which reports to be the narrative of a French Canadian habitant; The Home of Jasper the Yellowhead; The Trail Makers of the Quebec; The Great Big Game Fishing, being an account of the catching of a record tuna off Port Medway, N.S.; and Day's Fishing in Timagami, are some of the articles appearing in this month. THE TONGUE

There is no greater source of evil than that the unsanctified use of the tongue. Nine-tenths of all our social, political and religious troubles are traceable to the tongue. It destroys the sanctity of homes, severs the ties of affection between husband and wife, parents and children; sets otherwise peaceable communities in a tumult of unwarmed and needless excitement. This deadly weapon has dethroned empires, crushed kingdoms, laid waste continents, caused disease and destruction, and ruined the name and end of mankind to the other.

The tongue is the medium of conversation—talk, banting, talk-back, lying, gossip, etc. It is the mouthpiece of the brain, and willingly responds to its demands. The language of tongues (languages) 2,314 years old, is still in use. It is the language of the learned, and the mind of the designs of a wicked and worldly-glorious seeking people. It has no equal save to limit the vast amount of worthless trifling, deriding and dangerous conversation, it would stop the building of many a tower of trouble.

He longed to get back to where, as he expressed it, he had "had elbow room." In the city he was a stranger to everyone; at home, he knew everyone; but work was hard, and everyone meant hard tool and long hours, with many variations and problems to solve, but they are only a drop in a bucket when compared with the problems of city life. We do not appreciate as we might the advantages which are ours, living as we do in such a desolate and quiet district. The mere privilege of seeing green things growing, brings happiness, and the return for honest effort makes a satisfaction which cannot come to the average resident of the cities.

EFFECTIVE DEFENCE OF "MADE IN CANADA"

Advertising Journal Takes Issue with
With "Made-in-Canada," But is Successfully Answered

"Foreign Advertising," a journal published in New York, recently carried an editorial condemning the "Made-in-Canada" movement--first, because of its "entire selfishness" and second, because when analyzed it was not good business." A well known publicist, who has championed the "Made-in-Canada" movement from the start, takes issue with the editorial in the following letter, which he has addressed to the editor of the paper in question:

Wherein is the Sin?

"Let us consider the facts: What good business do you know who is not selfish--at least a little? Is an enlightened manufacturer which after all is a business, not selfish? I am sure it has appeared that this whole "Made-in-Canada" movement is but mere sentiment and that it is prosecuted for selfish and personal reasons. Certain Puritans have asserted vehemently that the present "Made-in-Canada" campaign is a plot by Canadian manufacturers to take advantage of conditions to advance their own interests. You estimate this strongly in your editorial. I say let us admit that it is selfish. In the sense that each manufacturer wants to sell his goods and is trying to keep himself in the business game during these trying times! Where is the sin in this? It is not good business that the Canadian manufacturers should further their selfish ends, give up labor, employment, and taxes to the government with which to pay them per cent--much of which must ultimately drift around to our stores and make good business for all of us, and all around more and better business for everybody else in the country. Canada is trying to keep himself in the business game during these trying times! Where is the sin in this? It is not good business that the Canadian manufacturers do this than attempt to please the said Purists by spending time on our knees praying for the success of our business, and in the field without turning a hair to the "guerrilla bullet" with which to buy the supplies for our defenders? The business man who is a honorable selfish is an asset to the country; it is the multitude of honorable selfish units that makes up the nation."

Prices and Quality

"Your second objection: 'It is not good business--certainly it is not good business unless the quality and the price is right and the goods are such as the people ask for.' Granted that we are in the business to give preference to those 'Good Made-in-Canada's' as against imported goods, which may go 'dumped' into this country? I hold no brief for any Canadian manufacturer who may be making poor quality goods, which cannot compete with the American and who will take over any 'Made-in-Canada' cry, just as a poor relation might do, in trying to sell his inferior goods. I do favor, however, giving preference to Canadian goods and overcoming as far as possible that old-time innate prejudice which seems to be an instinct in human beings everywhere against goods of home manufacture. I hold this same opinion in regard to our own resources, and gladly devote considerable valuable space to this cause in our green home magazine. Frankly I take issue with you when you put up such a doctrinaire contention wholeheartedly, and stating that 'Made-in-Canada' slogan has almost deteriorated into a 'boycott.' I believe that you will agree with me that there is a greater tangible thing of real and very pronounced benefit to the country from this patriotic movement. I should like to see the principle of proving 'that you are right' means of several thousand letters which we have received from our women readers demonstrating great and decided value in this movement as far as the Canadian market is concerned. I am sure that any man in Canada who may care to illustrate his Canadian manufacturer is taking advantage of this movement, in his advertising of underwear and hosiery, for example or specimens ad in this series, will find the way very clearly as to how Canadian manufacturers can well link up with this movement to their decided advantage."

"It is as much the duty and the advantage of every Canadian to buy goods made in Canada as for a Canadian soldier to fight for his own country instead of going over to the enemy."

The man that has a made-in-Canada salary should have made-in-Canada

oil investigations

For some time past the Department of the Attorney General has been making a general preliminary investigation into the affair and methods of several Oil Companies. This investigation has brought sufficient irregularities to the surface to justify the Government in appointing a Committee to make a full-scale inquiry into the subject-matter, and the Act respecting Enquiries into Public Matters. As a consequence, Judge Carpenter of the District Court has been appointed a commission under that Act with power to inquire into and concerning the promotion, incorporation management and operation of oil companies, the expenses of management, investment of funds, nature of properties or claims held, the manner and cost of sale or disposal of stock and other allied questions.

Frank D. Esq., K.C., of Edmonton, has been appointed by the Government as a member of the Commission, an appointment which in itself should be sufficient guarantee of the Government's desire to make inquiry thorough.

We understand it is the wish of the Government that all assistance be given by the Public and to that end the school districts are requested to contribute a sum of money to the Commission, an amount which need not be used for potatoes is the sound advice given, as it may engender a scallop crop, which can be averted by the use of fertilizers. When there is a lack of nutrients in the soil, application of crumbled peat will be found beneficial. This will also retain moisture in light soils. Information is given on the use and use of bone-meal mixture. The Circumferential which can be had by application to the Publication Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa should have a wide circulation.

DISEASES OF THE POTATO

There could hardly be a more timely or a more appropriate volume publication at this moment than Circular No. 9 of the Division of Botany at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, dealing with "The Control of Potato Diseases," by H. T. Gossow. With the coming of this circular every grower of the potato should be in a position to profit by acquainting himself. It treats of the different diseases to which the potato is subject and of the preventives and remedies that can be successfully applied. Especially does it deal with seed potatoes, a series of treatments being given that should be followed in handling. Instruction is also furnished on what should be adopted to redeem infected land, on the early recognition of disease, on spraying for the suppression of the Colorado beetle and Late Blight, and on the storing of seed potatoes. How to use bicarbonate of soda and in what quantity is also given. The author also states that should not be used for potatoes is the sound advice given, as it may engender a scallop crop, which can be averted by the use of fertilizers. When there is a lack of nutrients in the soil, application of crumbled peat will be found beneficial. This will also retain moisture in light soils. Information is given on the use and use of bone-meal mixture.
